

What America Should Stand For

David Kelley, Ph.D.

Executive Director, The Objectivist Center

Free Lecture sponsored by Arizona Objectivists

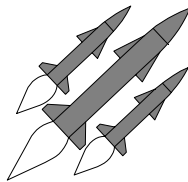

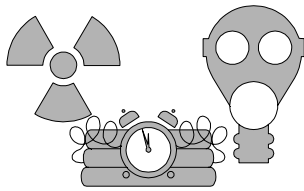

Saturday, March 8, 2003 at 7 PM

Sheraton Phoenix Airport Hotel

The war against terrorism....

Conflict with Saddam Hussein....

Hostility from our European allies...

At a time of heightened risk and confrontation, it's important to know what we stand for. Above and beyond our physical safety, important as that is, America has always claimed to fight for its ideals. What are those ideals—or what should they be? What are the values we should protect at home and promote abroad? The vague generalities we hear from our leaders are not enough.

David Kelley will highlight the principles at the core of the American way of life. In his wide-ranging talk, he will explain why our values are rejected—by allies in Europe as well as enemies in al Qaeda.

David Kelley is a professional philosopher and widely published writer. He has written and lectured extensively on issues in ethics, politics, culture, and public policy. His most recent books are The Contested Legacy of Ayn Rand: Truth and Toleration in Objectivism; and A Life of One's Own: Individual Rights and the Welfare State. His articles on the terrorist attacks on September 11 can be seen at http://www.objectivistcenter.org/assault/assault_on_civilization.asp

Sheraton Phoenix Airport Hotel in Tempe on the northwest corner of Broadway and 52nd Street. Seating is limited so email AZObjectivists@cox.net or call 480-921-1156 to reserve a seat.